SOWING GOOD SEED by J. Merritt Johnston

His hands bore the calluses of years spent at the plow. His coveralls wore the dust of years spent at the saw. His face stored the character of years spent in the fields and the workshop. He was small in stature, but in my eyes, he was larger than life. Papa was the affectionate name we grandchildren assigned to him. He finished only grade school, yet somehow he was one of the wisest people I've ever known.

He believed in the land and its power to nourish, grow, and sustain. He reveled in the feel of the Georgia clay in his hands and the white-tipped wonder of a cotton field just before harvest. He was recycling and repurposing long before the world made it fashionable, and he did so simply because he knew it was the best way to steward what God had given him.

The fruits of his labor were evident. On my visits to Georgia, I stayed in a home filled with his woodworking creations and ate at a table filled with the yield from his garden. But I'm not sure if he ever felt defined by his work. The man I knew definitely valued and practiced hard work, yet he managed to strike a balance between the tasks at hand and the people in need. He knew his greatest calling was to sow spiritual seeds.

Sometimes it seems much more challenging to see the fruit of my work.

Much of what I do is accomplished in a solitary setting at my computer, and the impact of the work is often hard to measure.

However, sitting at this year's Friends of Grace Banquet, I was moved to see one of Grace's international students sharing about his ministry. He first heard about Grace on Facebook, and now he is being equipped to impact countless lives. Managing Grace's Facebook page is one of those computer tasks that I check off a list, but I must never forget that it is also an opportunity to sow seed. We live in a rapidly changing technological world, and sometimes we can lose sight of the people in need all around us.

As we begin a New Year, I am grateful for the privilege to be a part of the work God is doing at Grace. We are sowing good seed - on Facebook, in the classroom, and on the mission field. So bring on the plow and the calluses in 2015 ...

the harvest is waiting.

*"Let us not lose heart in doing good, for in due time we will reap if we do not grow weary. So then, while we have opportunity, let us do good to all people, and especially to those who are of the household of the faith."
- Galatians 6:9-10 -*

PARTNERS in GRACE: Ministry Report

WELCOME OUR NEW STAFF:

PoL Gonzales: Join us in welcoming PoL Gonzales as the Operations Manager at our new international office in Manila. PoL came to the Grace World Headquarters in Houston for three weeks in October to learn more about our systems and ministry, and he is currently overseeing the recruitment and training of new employees in The Philippines. The Manila office will play a pivotal role in our ability to reach the nations and to meet the needs of our increasing student population. We are grateful to have PoL's leadership over this exciting expansion for Grace.

Angela Mell: We are pleased to welcome Angela to the Grace Team in the role of Bursar. She brings extensive expertise and experience, having served previously as Bursar for Southern California Seminary for six years.

Camille Moughon: We are excited to welcome Camille to the Grace Advancement Team (effective January 2015). She has been serving as a highly successful major gift officer within the political arena but felt the call to focus on ministry. She is excited to plug into the international initiatives at Grace.

Billy Webb: We are blessed to welcome Billy to the Grace Team as Assistant Librarian/Cataloger. He will serve alongside Librarian Debbie Cox as well as assist professors with technology needs at the main campus.

A SEMINARY TO THE WORLD GLOBAL OUTREACH INITIATIVE

This fall we are equipping 153 credit students, including 23 international students representing 10 countries. We are currently processing numerous applications for Spring 2015 from our international partnerships. Please continue to pray as we respond to this amazing growth and the opportunity to equip leaders around the world.
